Thought: I now have several articles about the power shutdown in Spain. The event appears to have occurred within the last 2 days, based on the dates of the articles. It seems that the cause of the blackout is still under investigation, but some reports suggest it may be due to a series of power incidents leading up to the full blackout. The grid operator has assured that it won't happen again.

Final Answer: Spain suffered a power shutdown approximately 2 days ago, which was caused by a series of power incidents leading up to the full blackout. The cause is still under investigation, and the grid operator has assured that it won't happen again.

{"query": "Who were the catholic kings?" }

I need to find historical information about Catholic monarchs. Given that there have been numerous Catholic kings throughout history, it would be beneficial to narrow down the search. In this case, I will focus on the Catholic Kings of Spain, who ruled from 1474 to 1598, namely Ferdinand and Isabella (the Unifiers of Spain).

Action: Local search
Action Input: "Catholic Monarchs of Spain"

Observation: The Catholic Monarchs, also known as Ferdinand and Isabella, ruled Spain from 1479 to 1504. They are best known for their reign during the late Middle Ages and Early Modern period, which saw significant events such as the unification of Spain, the expulsion of the Moors, and the financing and sponsorship of Christopher Columbus's first voyage to the Americas.

Ferdinand II of Aragon (born 1452, died 1516) and Isabella I of Castile (born 1451, died 1504) were cousins and married in October 1469. They faced challenges early in their reign, with internal conflicts arising from the War of the Castile (1475-1479) and the Great Colloquy of Toledo (1480-1482), both of which they eventually overcame.

The Catholic Monarchs' most significant achievement was the Reconquista, or reconquest of Spain, which ended with the fall of Granada in 1492. As a result, Islamic rule in Spain came to an end after almost eight centuries. This victory brought substantial wealth and cultural exchange between the Christian, Jewish, and Muslim populations.

In 1492, the Catholic Monarchs also issued the Alhambra Decree, ordering the expulsion of Jews from Spain, which had far-reaching consequences for both the Iberian Peninsula and the Jewish diaspora. The same year, Christopher Columbus received funding from the monarchs to sail west in search of a new route to Asia, eventually reaching the Americas in 1492, marking the beginning of European exploration and colonization in the New World.

The Catholic Monarchs' reign had a profound impact on Spain and Europe as a whole, establishing the foundations for modern Spain and shaping the political, religious, and cultural landscape for centuries to come.

{"query": "Who is the leading candidate to be the next pope?" }

```
> Entering new AgentExecutor chain...
To answer this question, I need current data about the leading candidates for the next Pope. Therefore, I will use a Web search.

Action: Web search
Action Input: Leading candidate for the next Pope
Observation: Some of the names frequently mentioned as candidates to succeed Francis include Cardinal Luis Antonio Tagle, 67, of the Philippines, a liberal sometimes referred to as "Francis 2," and Cardinal Peter Erdo, 72, of Hungary, who is considered a favorite among the more conservative cardinals.

Thought: I now know the final answer.

Final Answer: Some of the names frequently mentioned as candidates to succeed Pope Francis include Cardinal Luis Antonio Tagle and Cardinal Peter Erdo. However, it's important to note that the actual election of a new pope is a secretive process conducted by the College of Cardinals, so no one can definitively say who the leading candidate is until the conclave takes place.
